CLARENDON HILLS RESIDENT PRODUCES CONCERT VIDEO

Ken Hall, Clarendon Hills resident and owner of Rivendell Story Works, is the producer of a new Dancin' in the Street concert video that captures the spirit of the event. Hall, one of the newest members of the Village's Special Events Committee that plans and executes the concert series, used his locally-owned business to create the video at no cost to the Village. The video can be viewed on the Village's website at www.clarendonhills.us/concerts.cfm.

The video features residents, visitors, local merchants, and members of the Special Events Committee claiming the importance of this free concert event. Over the last ten years, Dancin' in the Street has become a local tradition that is truly appreciated by the residents and the downtown merchants. The concert series originated as a mechanism to bring patrons to the downtown businesses and the event continues to fulfill this purpose.

The production of the video was an in-kind donation to the concert series as part of the Village's sub-sponsorship program. The video will be used to attract future sponsors to the concert series and ensure the continued success of the event. Sponsorships, coupled with beverage sales, have fully subsidized the concert series for the last several years. Without sponsorship support, the concert series would not have seen its 10th year.

As a reminder, there are six more concerts to enjoy this year. Due to inclement weather, the July 8th concert was rescheduled to Wednesday, August 19th. For details on the entertainment line-up, please see the Village's website at www.clarendonhills.us/concerts.cfm or contact the Village at (630) 286-5400.
